Flocknote is a service that will help us communicate with you quickly and conveniently via email and text messaging. Fourth Sunday of Easter

I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. Don't those magnificent words of Jesus sit well with your soul? I remember the anguished nights of my youth, praying for all those around the world who would die that night and go to hell because no one had ever told them about Jesus. Even as a ten-year-old I knew, in that deep, warm place where grace and truth hover in the heart, that God was greater than all that.

The Vatican II pastoral document Gaudium et Spes (The Church in the Modern World) gives words to our intuitions about who the sheep in Christ's pasture might be:

We ought to believe that the Holy Spirit in a manner known only to God offers to everyone the possibility of being associated with this paschal mystery. (22)

In the sixth book of C.S. Lewis' classic Christian allegory, The Chronicles of Narnia: Voyage of the Dawn Treader—such a beautiful book, my favorite of the seven—the odious, insufferable cousin Eustace has a terrifying encounter with a dragon, and is saved by a Lion. He immediately feels terrible about his past behavior, and asks his cousins Lucy and Edmond to forgive him, and to tell him more about this Lion (the Christ). Do you know him? asks Eustace. Yes, says Edmond. I know him. But he knows me better. Ah.

Beautiful. God is near to us, and knows us better than we can know God. There is, unfortunately, one caveat: God looks upon the lowly and supplies them. But the proud God knows from afar (Ps. 138:6).

What are you doing to make sure God doesn't know you from afar?

What's New at St. Clare

On April 13 St. Clare hosted Moms and Muffins, a fun way for our students to spend time with their moms at school.

The 6th grade science class explored ways scientists count populations using a model population of pinto beans.

On April 11, St. Clare presented its strategic plan for the next 4 years. Mr. Elias Moo, Superintendent of Catholic Schools for the Archdiocese, and Mr. Keith Parsons, CFO for the Archdiocese, joined Pastor Fr. Jose Maria Quera and Principal Sr. Mary Elisha Glady, RSM, for the presentation.
